Poetical.

REMEMBERED AND FORGOTTEN.

What shall we remember,
What shall we forget?
Seems the vexing question
Over which men fret,
Till the shining angel,
Charity by name,
Points to her white record,
Known to earthly fame.

What shall we remember?
Every kindly thought;
Every well fought battle;
Every good thing wrought;
Every thoughtful saying;
Every honest deed,
Done by friends and neighbors
For each other's need.

What shall we remember?
Nothing that will harm;
Nothing that will scatter
Trouble and alarm;
Nothing that will foster
Hatred in the heart;
Nothing that will make us
Act the vengeful part.

What shall be forgotten?
Everything that mars;
Everything that brings up
Old forgotten scars;
Everything that rankles,
Everything that stings—
Making room for treasures
And all beauteous things.

What shall be forgotten
As we pass along?
Every jealous feeling,
Every grudge and wrong,
If we close our journey
With our faults forgiven,
What shall be forgotten?
Everything but heaven.

Select Story.

THE DEATH CHARM.

Along a broad highway, in the State of Maryland, rode two persons, mounted upon two splendid animals, with the easy grace of equestrians accustomed to the saddle.

One was a maiden of scarcely more than 16, with a fresh, lovely face and a form developing into perfection, wearing a dark blue habit and a slouch hat, with a heavy ostrich plume. Gauntlet gloves incased her tiny hands, while about her there was an air of high breeding.

Her company was nearly double her age, attired in the undress uniform of a Captain of cavalry. He was a striking-looking man with a frank, fearless face that was very fascinating.

That there was a love affair existing between the two—young as was the maiden—their glances indicated, and the course of ture love, in their case, seemed to be running smooth.

Presently they came upon a crowd of men in the roadway. A youth lay bound upon the ground, his face pale and bleeding, and above him bent a half dozen rude fellows, talking in angry tones.

'Carter, what means this disturbance?' asked the maiden, sternly, addressing one of the men.

The man touched his hat politely and replied:

'It means, Miss Lulu, that we've caught a Tartar here, but we've got him tied fast now.'

'What has he been doing, Carter?'

'Well, you see Miss, I saw him coming out of the forest, where, you know, your father allows no gunning, and I called to him to stop and he paid no attention to me, so I called the boys from the field and we gave chase and caught him, though he fought like a tiger.'

'And you have dared to attack a man in the public road, sir? My father shall hear of this at once,' said Lulu Sanford, angrily.

'He's nothing but a gypsy, Miss, from the camp over the hill yonder,' sullenly said the man.

'He is a human being, and was doing no harm. Unbind him at once, sir!'

The young officer at once sprang from his horse and quickly released the youth, who was secured with a rope, and said kindly: 'Get up my man, and return to your camp.'

The youth turned his dark eyes upon the speaker, and said, faintly:

'I cannot, sir, I am badly hurt.'

'Shame on you, Carter! a number of burly men to beat a poor boy as you have done! You shall suffer for this, all of you!' cried the maiden, indignantly; and as the men hung their heads abashed, she continued:

'Raise him in your arms and carry him at once to the mansion, while I ride by and send Dr. Moore to see him. Tell Jane to put him in a comfortable room.'

Anxious to redeem themselves in the eyes of their employer's daughter, the men raised the youth in their arms and bore him away, while Lulu Sanford and her escort, Captain Fred De Lancey, galloped on after the physician.

An hour after, the two rode up to the door of a very handsome mansion surrounded by ornamental grounds, flower gardens and every indication that those who dwelt there were possessed of wealth and refinement.

At the door an elderly gentleman met them, who called out pleasantly:

'Well, Fred, I am glad to see you, my boy. Richard told me you had arrived this morning.'

'Yes, Colonel, I received sixty days' furlough and stopped to see you on my way home, and this afternoon Miss Lulu and myself ran off for a ride,' replied the young officer.

'And I am very glad we did, papa, and I found your overseer, Carter, and five of the hired men had beaten a boy severely just because he did not stop when commanded to,' said Lulu.

'Yes, the doctor is now with the poor boy and his father too. I fear the youth is badly hurt, and Carter and the men shall leave my place at once, for the little fellow was doing no harm, and his being a gypsy is no crime. But come into the house and get ready for dinner, for I have a surprise you.'

'A surprise for me?' said Lulu.

'Yes; I have found a governess for you in singing and instrumental music, as you desire, and who speaks Italian perfectly; she will be here in two weeks, and I have engaged her for two years, so you can complete your education under her.'

'I am so glad—I was afraid I would have to go to boarding school.' And Lulu ascended to her own room, while her father took Captain DeLancey in charge.

The gypsy boy was severely hurt, and for nearly a week the doctor feared he might not recover. His father hung night and day over him, never caring for himself. At length the youth rallied and recuperated with such rapidity that the gypsy chief said he could take him back to camp, and asked to see Lulu, who had been untiring in her devotion to the wounded boy. Finding that the gypsy would go, Lulu ordered the carriage to drive them to their camp, a kindness that was accepted.

'And lady,' said the chief, with deep feeling, 'my boy owes you his life, and the prayers of our people will ever be for your joy. I have money to pay, yet I will not insult a heart that was kind—so kind that you brought my boy to your own home, and have cared for him as though he were your own kin, and not a poor, wandering gypsy.

'Now, lady, I beg you remember, if ever the world should turn against you, that you have true friends in the camp of Captain Carl, the gypsy.'

Lulu offered her hand in farewell to both Captain Carl, as his tribe called him, and the boy, and the dignified manner and striking appearance of the wandering chief could not but impress her.

* * * * *

The second day after the departure of the gypsies from Sanford Hill, as the rich old ex-army officer's place was called, there was an arrival in the person of the governess engaged to "finish off" Lulu's education.

At the first glance of Viola Hale, Lulu did not like her; but a few moments after she changed her mind, and seemed almost fascinated by the beautiful governess, for she was strangely, weirdly beautiful, with great black eyes in which slept worlds of passion, ripe, red lips, teeth like milk and without a blemish, and hair that touched the floor when she was standing—hair blue black and with an inclination to curl.

Her complexion was dark, almost bronze in hue, but there was rich blood in the cheeks, and her form was the very perfection of grace and beauty.

Her age was hard to tell—at times she seemed liked a girl, and then again one might not be far wrong if he said she was nearly 30.

From her entree into the mansion, she ruled, and yet no one seemed to know that she held the reins, but Colonel Sanford soon became her slave. Lulu seemed wholly under her influence, and no one seemed conscious that she made her power felt. She was an accomplished musician, and sang with a depth of feeling that would capture any listener.

When at length Captain Fred De Lancey came again to Sanford Hill on a visit, and met Viola Hale, he seemed to Lulu's surprise not to take any fancy to her.

'That woman has a story, Lulu, and a dark one, mark my words for it,' he said.

'She is very beautiful, Fred, and accomplished, sweet-tempered, and,—and'

'And what, Lulu?'

'And I do not like to have you find fault with my sweet governess.'

'Then I will not. She's an angel—only she has a history,' and the persistent man could not be changed in his opinion.

The next day Fred proposed a horse-back ride, and when the horses were brought round Viola Hale appeared in a habit that set off her wondrous beauty strangely.

Refusing the offer of Fred to aid her, she laid her hand on the pommel and leaped lightly into the saddle from the ground.

'She's been in a circus, I'll wager,' said Fred, in a low tone, as he lifted Lulu to her saddle, and he was more convinced of this when he saw the perfect manner in which the governess managed the wild horse she rode.

When Viola Hale realized that the young Captain did not exactly like her, it was hard to tell; but she suddenly began to turn her battery of fascination upon him in a manner that threatened to change his mind regarding her. But fortunately his furlough was soon ended; and he departed for his command on the frontier a happy man, because Lulu Sanford had promised to become his wife when she was a year and a half older, and Colonel Sanford approved the match for the young officer came of a good family, and was a brave and dashing fellow; possessed no evil habits, and yet was the richest man in the army

* * * * *

A year passed by, and again Captain Fred DeLancy was a visitor at Sanford Hill, delighted at the wonderful progress Lulu had made under the beautiful governess.

'Have you picked up any links, Lulu, that connect her with the past?' asked Fred.

'For shame, Fred! She is all that is lovely, and I believe that papa is really in love with her; and I assure you I would not object to her for a stepmother.'

'And does she care for your father, Lulu?'

'I thought so once; now I believe she only admires and respects him.

'He has lost heavily of late, he wrote me.'

'Yes. You'll not get the rich heiress you expected to, as papa is now barely well off.'

'I have been more fortunate, for my wealth has increased, and after I marry you, I shall resign from the army, and settle down to take care of my vast estate.'

'I am glad to hear you say so, for I have no desire to see your brown curls taken off by an Indian's scalping knife. But here comes Miss Hale.'

As Lulu spoke the governess swept into the room, and more than ever gracious was she to Captain De Lancey, and during his entire visit did she devote herself to him in such a kindly way that when he again returned to the army he admitted that he had misjudged her and believed her to be a thoroughly true woman.

* * * * *

'I would like to see Miss Sanford—my boy has sent her some little trinkets he has made for her,' said Captain Carl, the gypsy chief, appearing at Sanford Hill one day, two years nearly after his departure.

In his hand he held a basket, in which were some shell and wooden ornaments skillfully carved.

'Miss Lulu has not been very well of late, and it's a pity as the Captain's coming home soon to marry her; but I'll tell her you are here,' said the butler, and he soon returned with word that he was to come into the library.

In an easy chair, a book lying closed upon her lap, sat Lulu Sanford, looking pale and with a haggard expression in her beautiful eyes.

'It was very kind of your son to remember me, and these are very beautiful indeed. I suppose he is quite a man now?'

But the gypsy made no reply and his eyes were riveted upon Lulu.

Again she spoke to him, surprised at this strange look, and then from his lips burst the question:

'Where did you get that charm, lady?'

Supported by a gold chain of rare workmanship that encircled her neck hung a massive gold heart, with a single ruby of rare size in the centre, and upon this the eyes of the gypsy were fixed with a startled look.

'This beautiful charm,' and Lulu raised it in her fingers—"it was given to me by my governess a month ago.'

'Lady, I would know that gold heart with its single red eye among a million; it is the Death Charm.'

The man spoke in horse tones, and his manner startled Lulu, who said quickly:

'The death charm! What can you mean?'

'Lady, let me see it, please.'

Impressed by his manner, Lulu unfastened the clasp and handed it to him.

For a moment he gazed intently upon it, and then, to the surprise of the lady, touched a spring, the existence of which she knew not of, and it flew open like a locket.

'I knew I was not mistaken—it is the the death charm. See here lady—do you see the little marks that look like engraving? Well, they are holes through the gold back, as you see the sponge within this wire case?—this is saturated in deadly poison—poison that you inhale day by day, until you gradually die, and none know the cause of your death. Lady, the one who gave you this wished to murder you.'

As white as snow, and trembling with excitement, Dulu cried:

'No, no, no! It was given me by my dear governess, Viola Hale.'

'Viola Hale! The first name is hers; she must be one who is your foe, lady. Is the woman you speak of in this house?'

As the gypsy spoke the governess glided into the room, and as her eyes fell upon the tall form near Lulu, she stopped, turned livid, and with a cry upon her lips, sank upon the floor.

'Oh, sir, call the servants, for she has fainted,' cried Lulu in alarm.

'Lady let her lie there while I tell you that she is not worthy of a kind thought. That women is my wife!'

'Your wife?' whispered Lulu.

'Yes, lady, she is, like myself, a gypsy, and at 14 years of age became my wife and queen of the band; but the year after the birth of our boy, whose life you have saved, she ran away from me to go with an Italian Prince, and when she had squandered his money she left him, too, to attach herself to a Spaniard, a sorcerer, and the man who made this death charm I hold in my hand. She killed him with his own poisons, and came back to me, professing repentance. Alas! it was from a desire to get her boy; as I still doubted her, she gave me this very charm to wear around my neck, telling me it would bring back my love for her.

'Accidentally I found a paper one day that told me the secret of the death charm and its posion, and I accused her of her treachery, and so great was her assumed grief that I did not make known her intent to kill me to my band.

'The following day she disappeared and carried the charm with her. Since then I have never known what become of her; but, thank heaven, I came here to-day!'

In horror Lulu had listened to the awful story, and then she felt all was true, for it came to her now how her old nurse had said the governess wanted to marry Fred De Lancy herself; then how she had insisted that for love of her the death charm should be worn day and night, and from the time she had put it on her health had begun to fail.

'Oh, how could she be so wicked?' cried the girl.

'It's her nature, lady. Ah! she is recovering consciousness,' and the gypsy chief stepped towards the prostrate woman, and, in his own language, spoke to her sternly.

With every nerve quivering, and her black eyes looking wild with terror, the woman arose and stood before her master thoroughly conquered.

'Lady, farewell. Please send this woman's things to this address in the city,' and Carl handed Lulu a card, while he continued: 'Keep that death charm, but take from it that deadly poison. Keep it as a souvenier that Captain Carl repaid the service you did his son.'

Then turning to the guilty, trembling woman, he said to her simply:

'Come!'

Without a word, and with bowed head, she followed him, and Lulu was left alone in horror and grief. Thus her father found her, and from her lips heard the terrible story. He folded his daughter in his arms in a rapture at her escape, while he said:

'I do believe her guilty, Lulu, for I remember I believed she loved me at first, yet her manner changed as soon as I met with financial misfortunes; and it was evidently her intention to kill you and marry Fred De Lancy, for she frequently asked about his riches. I will order her trunks sent off at once. I wonder what her band will do with her?'

'I cannot tell, father.'

'Then we will drive to their camp tomorrow and have a talk with Captain Carl, who seems to be a splendid fellow.'

And the next day Lulu felt so much better that she drove to the gypsy encampment with her father, but the wanderers had departed, and when they had returned again to the neighborhood, five years after, Lulu was Mrs. Fred De Lancy, and had a little boy whom they had named Carl, after the chief, who, with his son, came to Sanford Hill to visit them.

The gypsy boy had grown into a handsome man, and Captain Carl's locks were nearly white, and a look of settled melancholy rested in his eyes.

When asked by Lulu and her husband about Viola, he said, in a low, stern voice:

'She is dead, lady; our tribe sentenced her to die by her own hand, and being a gypsy, she obeyed.'

And Captain Carl and his son wended their way back to their woodland encampment, burying in their hearts a bitter secret.

DON'T NEED THEM

We don't need the electoral vote of Ohio, in the Presidential election next year, as the Buckeyes have not cast a Democratic electoral vote for twenty-seven years, and hence the Republicans only hold their own so far. The same State voted for Hayes in 1876, and yet he was defeated by Samuel J. Tilden, the Democratic President elect.

Mr. Buchanan's Life.

The Lancaster Intelligencer states that a legal contract has been formally entered into between Rev. E. Y. Buchanan and H. B. Swarr, Esq., executors of the late Hon. James Buchanan, and George Ticknor Curtis, Esq., of New York, according to the terms of which Mr. Curtis is to write a biography of the late ex-President. The work is to be in two volumes and to be completed by July 1, 1880. It is to be 'written, composed and edited' by Mr. Curtis, on material placed in his hands by the executors and with reference to the facts of general United States history. Mr. Curtis is to have charge of its printing and publication and is to receive $8,000 for his literary labors and one-half the copyright of the work. It is to be subject in all the stages of its progress to the inspection of the executors or their representatives. Mr. Curtis has recently completed the life of Webster, and is well known in literary and legal circles as a gentleman of eminent ability.

Suggestions for Reform in the District Attorneyship.

If Society wants protection from crime, and even handed justice in criminal cases, it must take some very obvious steps to secure its desire.

The duration of the office of the district attorney ought to be made equal to that of circuit court judge.

If the office is to be elective at all it ought to be separated from its usual place among political offices, and the election for it take place only with judicial elections.

The office ought to be made a bureau that should comprise not only its present duties, but much that is done by police officers and detective corps in keeping track of the criminal classes, and many other duties which no one attends to now at all. The office ought to be so salaried and reformed as that its genius could be expended as much on the prevention of crime as on its conviction.

It ought to have some responsibility to look after convicts whose term of sentence has expired. It would make a great difference in regard to lapse into further crime, if a criminal knew he was under the watch of a department whose business it was to know him and observe his movements if he were criminally inclined, or to help him if he were of honest intent. It is evident enough that this kind of work cannot be done where the office passes from hand to hind from year to year, often with no communication at all between predecessor and successor except to pass over a bundle of papers.—*Good Company. A Bright Prospect.

Dun, Barlow & Co's circular, showing the statement of failures during the third quarter and first nine months of 1878 and 1879 will be found interesting reading. It appears that for the third quarter of 1879 the failures have been less than one half the number for the corresponding period last year, and the liabilities show even a much larger proportionate reduction, being less than one-quarter of what they were in 1878. This sudden change in the financial condition of the country is certainly remarkable. As the report truly says: "Within a short year these failure figures have done duty towards illustrating a condition of trade as completely reversed as it is possible to conceive." Fears are expressed that the change has been too sudden to be permanent. It is to be hoped that they are groundless. Although there is, at the moment, a feverish feeling of speculation in Wall street, regular business seems to be establishing itself more and more thoroughly on a solid basis. Credits are shorter, and given with greater circumspection. Money is invested with greater care, and there seems to be a general inclination to make business slowly and surely instead of sensationally.—Williamsport Sun.

Cut this out and Save It.

A correspondent writes to an exchange as follows about the flower of a well known plant; "I have discovered a remedy for consumption. It has cured a number of cases after they had commenced bleeding at the lungs and the hectic flush was already on the cheek. After trying this remedy to my own satisfaction, I have thought philanthropy required that I should let it be known to the world. It is common mullein, steeped strongly and sweetened with coffee sugar, and drank freely. Young or old plants are good, dried in the shade and kept in clean bags. The medicine must be continued from three to six months, according to the nature of the disease. It is very good for the blood vessels also. It strengthens and builds up the system instead of taking away the strength. It makes good blood and takes inflammation away from the lungs."

It is the wish of the writer that every periodical in the United States, Canada and Europe should publish this receipt for the benefit of the human family. Lay this up and keep it in the house ready for use.

RUM, DIVORCE AND MURDER.

Although John Frederick Will's wife was 55 years old, and he only 30, he loved her better than anything else in the world except rum. She told him that he must give up one or the other, and, as he would not deprive himself of the liquor, she deprived him of the wife by getting a divorce. During six months he dogged her everywhere she went, constantly entreating her to take him back, but never able to comply with the condition of total abstinence that she imposed. This was in Indianapolis, and that city is horrified with the wife murder and suicide with which Will closed his career.

FEEBLE LADIES.

Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet; that constant drain that is taking from your system all its elasticity; driving the bloom from your cheeks; that continual strain upon your vital forces, rendering you irritable and fretful, can easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy, Hop Bitters. Irregularities and obstructions of your system are relieved at once, while the special cause of periodical pain is permanently removed. Will you heed this.

HOW IT WORKED.

The Republican party of Columbia county in convention met, nominated a full county ticket to be voted for on Tuesday last. Mr. Reece Fairman, a very respectable gentleman and excellent citizen was selected as a candidate for sheriff and honestly expected the full support and sympathy of his party. Mr. Fairman was encouraged in his endeavors to become sheriff, and as we are informed spent considerable time in canvassing the county. His chances of election, owing to divisions in the Democratic party, were better than any Republican candidate ever had in this county, and if he had been treated fairly by the men who nominated him, there is no telling what the result might have been. But as afterwards developed, he was only set up to be knocked down by his own so called friends. Last week, the editors of the Republican started out to betray their own candidate, and made no bones of saying in public places that "it was a matter of dollars and cents to them, as they would get the bulk of the printing if Ent was elected," which intimation that Mr. Ent had made a bargain with them was a slander on his character, as he had done nothing of the kind. And so with the hope of putting a little filthy lucre in their own pockets, and without consulting any members of the party as to their course, they assumed that they were the Republican party, that men of sense and principle must do their bidding and abandon the candidate simply for the pecuniary benefit of the Republican. This action was an insult to Mr. Fairman who was astonished last Saturday morning when he first heard of the movement against him, and an outrage upon the Republicans of Columbia county. It was only a part of the original programme laid out by these political schemers. They never intended to support Fairman, and the columns of their paper for several weeks back show scarcely a word in his favor. He was a mere tool from the start. Mr. Ringler, the Republican candidate for Prothonotary last fall can perhaps conjecture now who it was that cut his vote down nearly one thousand below the usual Republican vote. In counties where the Republicans are in the minority they occasionally slip their man in office by wise and proper management. For instance, in Montour county, where they always stick to their ticket, they have elected a republican Prothonotary a second time. With any kind of leadership the republicans of this county might accomplish something, but so long as the present management is permitted, so long will that party be in a hopeless and helpless condition, except to turn in now and then and try to elect an officer who they think will put a few coppers in the pockets of the ring-masters, by patronage. We do not believe that Mr. Ent, made any contract or promise with the Republican editors for their support. They expected to get his patronage out of "gratitude." So says the senior editor. The result shows how they helped him where their objects and motives were best understood. In several districts the movement reacted to some extent against its treacherous contrivers. In Bloomsburg Mr. Ent might otherwise have had perhaps 100 majority. In Greenwood Ent had a majority of 13 last year; this year he is beaten 48. Orange gave Ent a majority last year over Krickbaum of 114; this year it gives him but 61 over Smith, Ent's majority in Berwick last year was 152, and this year it is 93. But generally, in the County, the "sound money" Republicans are put in the position of supporting a Greenback candidate, and betray their own nominee besides! They have been very noisy, or their leaders for them, in denouncing "soft money" and all forms of the so-called "rag-baby" idea; but have now been manipulated, and managed by tricky leaders, for selfish purposes, into the open support of the heresy they have denounced.

THE RESULT IN COLUMBIA COUNTY.

The vote on Tuesday resulted in the election of Capt. Uzal H. Ent by a majority of 30. Until a few days before no one anticipated any difficulty about the election of the Democratic nominee.

The election of Captain Ent is by no means a Greenback victory. He must have had a large number of Democratic votes to carry him through, his whole vote being more than 1300 over the Greenback candidate for State Treasurer, and many voted for him as an independent Democrat because of personal prejudice against the regular nominee, and many on account of his own general popularity.

The fight was not a simple question as to whether Smith or Ent should be the next Sheriff. It was a fight to maintain the old organization.

The balance of the county ticket is elected by majorities shown in the table elsewhere. The vote was very light, not much more than half the voters turning out.

Leading Republicans in the town and through the county are vowing vengance on Beckley for the high-handed manner in which he sold them out. We await with curiosity to see how many days it will take him to whip the rank and file back into the traces. There are some, however, who will no longer submit to his rule or ruin administration.

Where oh, Where is the Greenback party now? The highest vote polled for any of their candidates was 454 for Jury Commissioner. Last year Mason had 1159. They certainly cannot claim Ent as he was elected by Democratic voters.

Mrs. Lounsbury, who shot her husband, an Episcopal minister in Connecticut, last September was tried at Bridgeport on the 31st ult. The case went to the Jury without argument and the verdict was "not guilty because insane.

A Deaf and Dumb Girl Talks in Her Sleep.

A singular story is told by John Lather, of Dorsey county, Ark., in the columns of The Little Rock Gazette. He has a daughter who suddenly lost her voice and hearing when she was a little girl some fifteen years ago. One night last week he was passing his daughter's room when he heard a strange voice. Arousing his wife they crept noiselessly in, and with thrills of joy saw that their dumb daughter was talking in her sleep. The mother clasped the girl in her arms, but when awake again she lost her voice. Since then she has been heard to talk aloud in her sleep, speaking generally of the occurrences in the household the day before. A deaf and dumb youth of the neighborhood, who had been looked upon as the girl's lover, was prostrated with grief upon hearing that his girl could talk.

THE ELECTIONS.

Butler is elected State Treasurer by a majority of 30 000 to 40,000. This was accomplished, not by any increase in the Republican vote, but by stay-at-home Democrats who allowed the election to go by default. The vote of the Republicans is far short of Hoyt's figures last year, and if Democrats had turned out and done their duty, Barr could have been elected by a handsome majority. If the public money is used to defeat Democrats next year in the Presidential campaign, by a corrupt Treasury ring at Harrisburg, they have the proud satisfaction of knowing that they quietly permitted it by staying at home last Tuesday. Sometimes "off years" are good things, sometimes not.

NEW YORK.

Cornell, Republican, is elected Governor in New York. The balance of the State ticket is Democratic. The election of Cornell was the result of the Tammany split in the Democratic party, Robinson being the regular nominee, and Kelly the Tammany candidate. The joint vote of Robison and Kelley over Cornell will reach nearly 40,000, so that New York still remains Democratic by a large majority and will cast its electoral vote for the Democratic candidate for President next year.

NEW YORK, November 5th.—The total city vote on governor and lieutenant governor, so far as returns are completed, give Cornell 45,010; Robison, 58,548; Kelly 42,136; Hoskins, 49,661, Potter 95,-512.

Returns from the state confirm the result given last night, but they are not yet full enough to show the exact status of the legislature, which, however, is undoubtedly republican by a slightly reduced majority.

MISSISSIPPI.

JACKSON, November 5.—But fourteen counties heard from. Of these eleven have elected straight democratic ticket, with a majority of 6.500. Hinds and Madison require an official count. Holmes is conceded to the greenbackers, with the exception of the senator. Marshall county, the stronghold of greenbackism, elects the full democratic ticket by a large majority. The election passed off quietly, with a small vote cast, and there was but little enthusiasm except in counties where the whites were equally divided.

NEW JERSEY.

TRENTON, November 5.—The election resulted throughout the state in a republican victory on the legislative ticket. The republicans elect their senators in Burlington, Middlesex and Passaic counties by large majorities, and the democrats elect their senators in Cape May, Sussex and Hunterdon counties by small majorities. The republicans elect at least 33 members, and the democrats 27, for the house of assembly. The republican majority on joint ballot will be about 9 The democrats elect their county ticket in Essex county and the surrogate in Mercer county.

OTHER STATES.

Maryland poles a large Democratic majority as usual. Connecticut has elected a Republican legislature, and Wisconsin gives its regular republican majority. In Massachusetts Ben. Butler is defeated for Governor, and the verdict of solid Democrats all over the country is "served him right." He ought not to have been nominated by the Democrats.

SUGAR-BEETS.

We have 4430lbs of Sugar-Beets raised on one-sixth of an acre of ground. This is at the rate of over 13¼ tons per acre. Some of the beets are very large averaging five pounds each; but a large portion of them are very small caused by the plants being too thick in the rows. The seed were imported from Germany, and sowed in plowed furrows two and a half feet from center to center, and cultivated with one horse and cultivator. We sowed over half an acre, but the seed or young plants perished on all but one-sixth of an acre of the highest part of the ground, caused we suppose by too much wet in the furrows where the young plants were. The ground was a clover and a timothy sod, manured, limed, and plowed in the spring. The land should have been plowed and cropped the year previous. There appears to be no reason why the land should not have yielded from twenty to forty tons per acre, provided the seed had been sowed on level ground on ridges instead of in plowed furrows, in rows one foot apart instead of two and a half feet, and the rows properly thinned out where they were too thick.

E. H. LITTLE.

The Boston Globe continues in successive chapters its revelations of the frauds by which the republicans carried Maine at the last election. Its witnesses are the chairman of republican town committees who confess to the prices which they paid for votes and the amount of funds furnished for the purpose by the Hon. James G. Blaine. These statements justify the boast that was made in behalf of Blaine while the contest was going on that he could raise more money for election purposes than any man in the republican party. They explain, too, the meaning of our Horatio Gates Fisher when he talked of the "pegs" which he and Blaine put into the "holes" up in Maine. When these revelations are all accumulated in one mass they threaten to exceed in partisan baseness, venalty, corruption and fraud anything that has been witnessed in this or any other free country since the ballot was invented as a method of ascertaining the voice of the people.—Patriot.

Death of Senator Chandler.

Senator Zachariah Chandler of Michigan, was found dead in his bed at the Grand Pacific hotel Saturday morning. He had been speaking in Wisconsin, and Friday night addressed an immense audience at M'Cormick's hall, in Chicago, and spoke with his usual earnestness. After the meeting, when he and Senator Logan and Hon. Jesse Spaulding, were sitting in his room, engaged in conversation, Senator Chandler complained of indigestion. His friends then bade him good night and left. That was the last time the senator was seen alive. That morning, when the office boy called him, there was no response. As upon repetition silence prevailed, the clerk effected an entrance through the transom and found that the senator was dead. The body was not quite cold, and the physician who was present decided that the death occurred about three hours previous to the discovery. The face looked tranquil, showing that death was painless.

Senator Zachariah Chandler was born in Bedford, New Hampshire, December 10, 1813. He received a good academical education, and was bred a merchant. In early life he settled in Detroit, where he was very successful in business. In 1851 he was elected mayor of that city. He was the whig candidate for governor of Michigan in 1852. In 1857 he was elected United States senator from Michigan to succeed the famous General Lewis Cass, a statesman who had won renown and reflected glory upon his state. During the thirty-fifth congress Senator Chandler served as chairman of the committee on the District of Columbia and of the committee on commerce. He was re-elected in 1863, and during that term again served as the chairman of the committee on revolutionary claims and mines and mining. He was also a member of the national committee which accompanied the remains of President Lincoln to Illinois, and was a delegate to the Philadelphia loyalist convention of 1866. In 1869 he was re-elected a second time. During the term that expired in 1875, he continued chairman of the committee on commerce. In October 1875, President Grant tendered him the post of secretary of the interior to fill the places made vacant by the resignation of Columbus Delano. He served until President Grant's retirement. When Senator I. P. Christiancy resigned his place in the senate early in the present year to accept the post of minister of Peru, Mr. Chandler was elected by the legislature of Michigan to fill the unexpired term of a man who had succeeded him in the senate four years before. His term of service would have expired in 1881.

As chairman of the republican national executive committee Mr. Chandler organized the plan for seizing the electoral votes of Louisiana and Florida through the returning boards, and to him more than any other man was Hayes indebted for his elevation to the presidency of the United States.

The trial at New Haven, Conn, of Rev. Mr. Hayden on the charge of poisoning Mary Stannard promises to develop instructive points touching arsenical poison. The prosecution is seeking to establish the identity of the arsenic found in the stomach of Mary Stannard with that obtained from a druggist's jar. In reply it is urged that the arsenic which the defendant is said to have placed in his barn to kill rats came from the aforesaid jar, while the State seeks to prove that the poison thus obtained was administered to the victim, and that the barn arsenic was purchased at another place before or after the poisoning for a deceptive purpose. The principal witness to establish this view is Professor Dana, of Yale College, who maintains that one sample can usually be distinguished from another sample of arsenic by the marked difference in the crystallization. To perfect himself for this very examination Professor Dana went to England to study the manufacture of the drug, arsenic not being produced in this country. The results of his microsopic researches are exceedingly interesting. It is certain that samples of the arsenic found in the barn and the druggist's arsenic reveal a striking difference in structure under the microsope. The prosecution seeks to prove by Professor Dana's testimony, as stated above, that the poison from the druggist's jar and that found in the stomach of Mary Stannard are the same. Whether it will be possible to convince the jury of the soundness of this view and its resulting conclusion remains to be seen. It is very likely, however, that a new field of evidence has been opened up which may have an important bearing on murder trials in future.—Patriot.

LADIES CAN "SHOP" BY PENNY POSTAL CARD

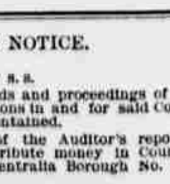

Out of town people who cannot conveniently travel, may have samples sent them of Dry Goods and all other goods that we sell, if they will write us. No charge, and no need to order if not suited. We make it a business to attend to such letters quickly; and when orders come we send the exact article wanted, and at exactly same price as other customers pay when here buying in person. When goods are not as ordered, we take them back. Having trained and responsible clerks, who are able to use discretion in filling orders, we are enabled to give great satisfaction to the many customers who leave the choice to us. With a reputation of twenty years at retailing, we cannot afford to lose our good name by lack of proper service to absent customers. Write plainly, and describe fully what is wanted, and about the price desired.

TRIMMING LAMPS.—Many persons are under the impression that oil lamps need be trimmed only once or twice a week. This is a great mistake. No lamp wick should be burned longer than one evening without trimming. A clear wick is not only safer, but a much better conductor. The charred or burned end of the wick is a non-conductor, and no better than so much leather in drawing the oil to the flame, causing heat and flickering of the light, often throwing up sparks. The result is the waste of oil, less light and danger of explosion. The charred portion of the wick should be cut off every evening before lighting, especially so on the Argand burners.

There are some very queer things about our Postoffice regulations. Take the postal card for instance. If a man has a steady hand and writes close, he may put several hundred words on a card and send it for a cent. If he pastes the least strip of printed matter on it, the postage is increased to six cents, though he may print on it the same matter, and by putting it in fine type get several thousand words on the card, and it will go for one cent; and he may paste the card all over with printed matter, then put it in an open envelope, and it will go for one cent. The card and envelope will go for less money than the card alone. When will these absurdities and inconsistencies be abolished and everything go by weight at a uniform price.—Ex.

The "Irish" potato is a native of Southern Mexico, Central America and in the northern part of South America. Sir Walter Raleigh discovered it during his voyage to Guiana and carried it to Europe, where it was first cultivated on his plantations in Ireland. The soil and climate were found to be admirably adapted to it and it has ever since been one of the staples of that country. Tradition states that when the first crop was ripe the small green balls or seed were supposed to be the potato itself. Finding these nauseous in the extreme the new plant was voted a failure until the tubers were discovered by the pigs which had been turned into the field.

IMPROVEMENTS.

—I S. Kuhn has added another story to his residence on Centre street, and put on a new roof.

—I. W. Hartman has made some repairs and alterations to his residence.

—C. G. Barkley, Esq., is altering and improving the interior of his house.

—The brick work on the new Presbyterian parsonage is nearly done.

—J. F. Peacock's house on Fifth street is under roof and the plasterers are at work.

REAL ESTATE IN THE WEST.

The Denver Land Co. offer in another column alternate lots in their addition. These alternate lots are in fact given away, though a nominal charge of one dollar is made for the deed. The Company limit the number purchasable at this price to five lots. Many of the large cities of the West have been started in a similar manner, and those who secured lots then, find themselves now in possession of valuable property. The opportunity does not often present itself of making an investment in Real Estate at such prices. The reliability of the Company and their title to the property being well established, there could be no risk, with a fine prospect for a rapid increase in value. Denver has had such a wonderfully rapid growth, it is probable that the land offered will be speedily taken up.

H. P. M. Birkenbine, civil engineer, who is making plans and specifications to be submitted to the Bloomsburg Water Company, has a system of fire protection which does away with the necessity of fire engines, by turning the full force of the pumps directly into the pipes in case of fire. The following instances of reduction in insurance where he has put in water works, ought to be sufficient evidence that the introduction of water into the town will be of great public benefit in a pecuniary view. We quote the following cases:

MOUNT JOY.

A frame dwelling formerly paid $24,50 per year for $1,600,00, now pays $10,00 per year for $2,000,00.

A tannery formerly paid 4½ per cent. They now have three year policies at 2½ per cent. Saving enough in insurance to pay all state, county and municipal tax and leaves a surplus of $16,11.

The rate of a frame hotel was reduced 2½ per cent.

In one instance a gentleman who uses water throughout his dwelling saves in insurance more than sufficient to pay his water rent and taxes.

CHAMBERSBURG.

A dry goods store insured at $18,000,00 save $60,00 per annum. The water tax upon the property is $22,00 per annum.

Repository hall paid $114.00 for $12,000, now pay $71,00 for $14,000,00.

The Woolen Mill (located on the bank of the creek) save $500,00 per annum in insurance.

No fire engines have been used in Chambersburg since the introduction of this system of water works, in 1876. All fires have been extinguished by streams taken from the fire hydrants.

LONG BRANCH, N. J.

Since the works have been in operation six attempts have been made to burn large hotels and in every case the fires have been extinguished by streams taken from the fire hydrants without the use of fire engines.

A SURPRISED PHYSICIAN.

A dying patient recovers through the interposition of a humble German. Some weeks ago Dr G——, a very reputable and widely known physician, living on C—— street was called to attend a very complicated case of rheumatism. Upon arriving at the house he found a man about forty years of age, lying in a prostrated and serious condition, with his whole frame dangerously affected with the painful disease. He prescribed for the patient, but the man continued to grow worse, and on Sunday evening he was found to be in a very alarming condition. The knees and elbows and larger joints were greatly inflamed and could not be moved. It was only with extreme difficulty that the patient could be turned in bed, with the aid of three or four persons. The weight of the clothing was so oppressive that means had to be adopted to keep it from the patient's body. The doctor saw that his assistance would be of no avail, and left the house, the members of the family following him to the door, weeping. At this critical hour, a neighbor, a poor and humble German, shoemaker, appeared to the grief-smitten ones as a saving angel. He had heard of the despair of the family, and now asked them to try his remedy, and accordingly brought forth a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil. As a drowning man will catch at straws, so the poor wife applied this remedy; she had no hope, but would try anything, as a matter of duty. The first application eased the patient very much; after a few hours they used it again, and, wonder of wonders, the pain vanished entirely! Every subsequent application improved the sufferer, and in two days he was well and out. When the doctor called a few days after, he was indeed surprised; for, instead of a corpse, he found a new-made man.—Exchange.

ORANGEVILLE ITEMS.

The closing exercises of the fall term of the Academy were held Thursday eve. Oct. 30. There were held up stairs and quite an audience was present. The Principal made some remarks at the opening after which the students took charge. T. Laufer presiding. The exercises consisted of declamations by Messrs. Keeler, and C. Williams; recitations by Misses Lucy Hidlay, Kate Laubaugh, Gertie Harder, J. Fisher, Misses Patterson, Mary Welsh and Lillie Megargell, Original speeches and essays were prepared by the following; James Coleman spoke in behalf of the Academy and its work. J. E. Robbins spoke on the Trustees. L. P. Stiner responded in behalf of the debating society. E. A Geareart talked about the boarding Club and its economy. Laura Fisher read an essay on the Ladies Boarding Club; their board cost only 52 cents a week. Laufer spoke of the progress of the Military Company, and in particular of the charge on the "Pumpkin Brigade." Messrs Whitmire and Oman spoke for the Cæsar and the Greek classes. Miss Decker read an essay on the Primary Department. F. I. Smith made a humerous address on the class in Politics. B. J. Wetherbee read a parting poem. Good music enlivened the occasion.

Quite an excitement in town on election day.

The springs and streams are very low on account of the continued dry weather.

Prof. McLaury left for New York last week.

BERWICK LETTER.

EDS. COLUMBIAN:

King winter gave us yesterday an emphatic reminder that his rule has commenced. His white emblem of power shrouds the fields so lately kissed by the warm breath of summer. We welcome him but feel that rain is surely needed ere the ground is hardened by his icy touch. The cosy fireside is again appreciated and the street corner is despised. The supply of firesides and houses is, however, not equal to the demand, but the emergency is met by the J. & W. Mf'g Co., and Col. Jackson; the former having engaged Mr. Brugler to erect ten more dwelling houses, and the latter, two cottages near his own palatial residence. The Co's houses are to be built in the western part of the town—western isn't it Mr. Independent? You know you found fault with my typography some time ago, when I happened to be a few degrees out of my course. Well, we are even if you will kindly remember about that "several million feet of lumber destroyed by fire some time ago in the J. W. lumber yard.

A week ago last Friday, the Judges at our Literary Society decided that the mental capacities of the sexes were equal. The negative tried very hard, and manfully (?) to effect a contrary decision, but of no avail; the Judges were married men and their wives were at home and knew of the contest. How leatherheaded Judges at times will be! So thinks Mr. Jayne of the First National Bank, because a parcel of them last Friday night actually had the effrontery to decide that the National Banking system was not beneficial, after listening to his brilliant arguments in support of the aforesaid system. The negative, headed by Mr. Stewart, of course, didn't know anything, at least but little; somehow the Judges felt that they said that little well, in an intelligent, impressive kind of a way, which seemed altogether absent in the banking corps' style of argument, so the Judges say. The Judges surely must have been prejudiced or else "how could they ever do it?" against such a formidable support as the banks had! Leatherheaded chairman, ditto Judges! So they say! The debate was exciting, instructive and amusing. On Bower's corner that night at half after ten, a perfect babel of voices made the hour hideous in earnest discussion of the bank topic, piercing our ears two squares away. The morning brought no relief, both Bower's and Bowman's corners echoed and re-echoed the mingling voices of the disputants. We haven't fully recovered yet.

The rolling mill is now entirely owned by the J. & W. Mf'g Co., who have purchased the one hundred and eighty shares that have been scattered through town (for fifty per cent. of their par value.) This industry, having for a number of years almost been a burden, is growing to be of considerable value to the owners. Its gentlemanly Supt., Mr. H. Glenn, has made himself thoroughly familiar with the business, and is helping to make it a success. The little office, by the way, where he has his retreat is subject to occasional assaults from the cars that are shifted near by. Such was the case recently, a car having leaped the track, taking a "header" for that little office, moving it about four feet, and giving Harry a general shaking up, who happened to be within.

THE SUNKEN ARK BELOW TUNKHANNOCK.

The accidental discovery of a sunken ark in the Susquehanna river below Tunkhannock, serves to awaken the remembrances of the few survivors of those who were connected with the circumstances attending its destruction. About the year 1843, the use of gray limestone for fluxing blast furnaces was experimented on with considerable success by the Catawissa and other furnaces along the Susquehanna, it being more easily obtained than the blue limestone previously used; and sometime during the spring of 1844 Mr. Thomas Morley, who carried on a foundry and plow works at Skinner's Eddy, Wyoming county, filled two arks with stone and started down the North branch to Catawissa, to exchange for pig iron. They were lashed together and carried a crew of five persons—Mr. Thos. Morley, the owner, who died about three years ago at Harrisburg; Hiram P. Morley, his son; Erastus Quick, a veteran old pilot, well known all along the river in those days; a deck hand by the name of Dodd, and another whose name is forgotten. Everything went favorably until Ousterhout's riffles were reached, about six miles below Tunkhannock and about 24 miles below Skinner's eddy, and a low rock familiarly known among watermen as Duck rock was approached. This rock is said to have been so called from the fact that its great body lies close to the raft channel, while its head merely shows above water and is often covered. Mr. Dodd observed to the pilot that the arks would drift very close to the rock, and had scarcely spoken when they struck, staving in the bow of one, and being heavily ladened there was hardly time to cut the other loose, when it sank in deep water.

The most singular part of this circumstance is that notwithstanding repeated efforts to find and raise it afterward, not a trace of it could be found, and it was believed to have broken up during the night and floated off, yet it has reposed there peacefully ever since. Mr. Hamilton Alricks, jr., who discovered it a short time ago while taking soundings along the raft channel, is probably the first person who has seen it from that day to this. The other ark was run to shore just below at Keeler's hotel, a one horse tavern well known to watermen at that time, where the party passed the night; part of the crew taking the ark to its destination the next day, and the rest returning home after spending a short time in a fruitless endeavor to find the missing ark.—Patriot

Five Men Killed in the Mill Creek Colliery Luzerne Co.

At six o'clock last Sunday morning John E. Cook, mine boss in charge of Mill Creek Colliery, of the Delaware and Hudson canal company, at Mill Creek, fifteen miles from Scranton, entered the mine and found one of the pillars of coal, which are always left to support the roof in the mines, giving way. He sent for a force of men to prop up the crumbling pillar, and at 10 o'clock George Forcey, Daniel Rupp, Wm. Kenney, Seth Thomas and D. Jenkins entered the mine. About 11 o'clock an explosion was heard by the people in the vicinity of the mouth of the mine, and the news that an accident had occurred in the mine spread like wildfire and soon a large and excited crowd had gathered at the colliery. As soon as it was deemed safe Mine Boss Cook, with two companions, descended into the mine. Proceeding to No. 8 lift they came across the charred bodies of Seth Thomas and D. Jenkins Further on, in No. 9 lift they found the remains of Forcey, Kinney and Rupp. The bodies of the latter were fearfully mangled and partly covered by a mass of splinters, timbers and broken coal. Forcey's leg was blown off, and M'Kinney's head was smashed. The men were all dead when found. The clothes were burned almost entirely off the bodies of Jenkins and Thomas. The bodies were hoisted to the surface amidst the lamentations of the friends and relatives of the unfortunate miners. The remains of Rupp, Forcey and M'Kinney were the first being brought out and afterwards those of Thomas and Jenkins. As the five men who first entered the mine were all killed it cannot be definitely ascertained how the catastrophe occurred. It is thought, however, that the flame from one of the miner's lamps came in contact with some gas and caused the explosion. Everything was in good condition when Mine Boss Cook visited the mine this morning. Three of the men leave large families; one of them a wife. Jenkins was a widower.

Clerking and the Trades.

A large shoe manufacturer advertised in Boston and New York for 25 shoe fitters to work in his factory, offering full current rates and steady work. The advertisement brought one application. About the same time a Boston firm advertised for a bookkeeper, and the next day's mail brought 347 answers. During the same month, an advertisement for a clerk in a Detroit paper brought 130 applications the first day, and a greater number of letters and personal applications the next day.

An advertisement for a week in the same city calling for a good carpenter, brought only four replies. It is altogether probable that in any considerable city in the land, an advertisement for a book keeper or retail clerk will bring fifty times as many replies as an advertisement for a fair workman at any trade. It is also probable that in any and every city the average earnings of clerks are nowhere near so large as the earnings of workmen of average skill in the various trades.

Further, it is fairly certain that, with equal capacity, industry and thrift, the young man who learns any trade will achieve a reasonable competence sooner than the young man who sticks to clerking; while the chances for materially improving one's condition are more numerous in the trades than behind the counter or at the desk.

Why is it then, that the boys all want to be clerks? Why is it that intelligent persons encourage them in looking for a chance to "get into business" and in looking down on mechanical employments—as though there could be any calling more wretchedly mechanical than average clerking? Why is it that teachers almost invariably train their pupils to "look above mechanical pursuits?

What the country wants now is workmen—intelligent, industrious, thrifty workmen; men who can do skillfully the work that waits for the doing—who can invent new means and better processes for developing the crude resources of the land, and for converting brute matter into life-sustaining and enriching wealth. Mere clerks and record keepers are at a discount. There are too many of them. And the professions, so called, are almost equally crowded with men who have nothing to do There never was a time when ability to do something real and practical was worth so much as now. Yet our young men swarm after clerkships. Why is it?—Scientific American.

The Army.

WHAT GENERAL SHERMAN SAYS OF ITS STRENGTH AND THE INDIANS.

General Sherman's annual report refers to the fact that there are but 20,799 troops available for actual service, one-sixth of the army being detached for special purposes. The general recommends that congress allow 25,000 men, exclusively for regiments of the line, and make special provision for the various detachments. He says the army cannot justly be held responsible for the work for 25,000 when so large a fraction is necessarily diverted to other uses, perhaps of equal national importance. A portion of the report is devoted to the Ute troubles. The history of the Utes is given. They are declared to be Indians of the worst class, their management being complicated by mineral deposits in their country attracting adventurous whites. They are warlike and have no difficulty in obtaining by barter, the best rifles and ammunition. While the game lasts they will not work, except on compulsion. The report details at length the history of the events leading up to the movement of Major Thornburgh's command and says Agent Meeker only asked for 100 men. Thornburgh took 200, which was considered sufficient. Letters were given which was passed between Thornburgh and Meeker. The general expresses the opinion that Thornburgh acted from the beginning to the end exactly right. So did Meeker, the crimes afterward committed rest wholly on the Indians.

Referring to the hostile Sioux across the border in Canada, the general says the buffalo are fast disappearing and want or hunger will soon compel the Indians to depredate on our people. Some permanent security must, he claims, be found, than the results from the good will of our neighbors. He, therefore, recommends that congress appropriate $100,000 to complete Fort Assiniboine and $20,000 to build a new post near Wood mountain. The general believes that very soon the progress of events will make it absolutely necessary to move all the Indians located on the Upper Missouri to the Sioux reservation below Cannon Ball Creek, and open up for actual settlers all the land in the region north and west of that reservation.

CITY LOTS

Opera House, Denver, Col.

U. S. Mint, Denver, Col.

25x125 FEET

SITUATED IN NORTH DENVER,

EVERY OTHER LOT ABSOLUTELY FREE! FREE! WARRANTEE DEED WITHOUT RESERVE.

Denver now has a population of 40,000. Great cities are the outgrowth of great countries. Twenty years ago Denver was a small trading post on the frontier, now it is a large city, with numerous Churches, Hotels, Theaters, Street-railroads, Gas-works, Water-works, Gold and Silver Smelting and Refining Works, with a United States Mint, and is the great Railroad Center of the West. There are seven First-class Railroads now running and connecting with all the Principal and Branch Railroads from Maine to California. It is the Capital of Colorado, naturally the richest State in the Union, and located in about the geographical center of the United States. The climate is charming, with the best water and purest air in the world, and the scenery is unexcelled for beauty and grandeur. It is surrounded by the richest Gold, Silver, Copper, Iron, Lead, and Coal Mines and Agricultural Lands in America. It is now the headquarters for Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, Wyoming, Nevada, Arizona, and Northern Texas. The rich mineral and agricultural resources of this vast country will make Denver the largest and wealthiest city in the West.

WHY LOTS ARE GIVEN AWAY.

As the tide of immigration is now in this direction, it is the Company's interest to have people locate in Denver and on their property. To encourage emigration here, the Company will give to any one sending their name and address a warrantee deed, in fee simple, for one or more lots in North Denver, situated in Weld County, State of Colorado, in immediate view of this beautiful city, the only charge being one dollar to pay the Notary Public fees for acknowledging deed and conveyance. The Company does not give every lot away, but each alternate one, and does not expect that every person who gets a lot in North Denver will come here, but a great many will, and they will induce their friends to follow. The increased population will soon make this property very valuable, and this Company retains each alternate lot, which they hold at prices varying from $25 to $500, according to location. For this reason the above proposition is made. The deeds are unconditional, not requiring any one to settle or improve, but with full power to transfer and deed to others. The limit to any one person taking advantage of this offer is five lots. This property is not hill-side, mountain, or swamp, but is level, fertile, and has advantages for building upon too numerous to mention. Full and satisfactory information, with indorsements from our best citizens, will be furnished.

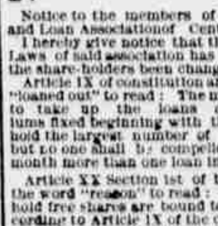

CERTIFICATE OF TITLE.

I, W. C. SANDERS, County Clerk and Recorder within and for said County and State, do hereby certify to the above and foregoing to be true, and title complete to the land therein described according to the records in my office. I further certify there are no abstracts or transcripts of judgments, taxes or other leins standing against said land. In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal this 2d day of August, A. D. 1879.

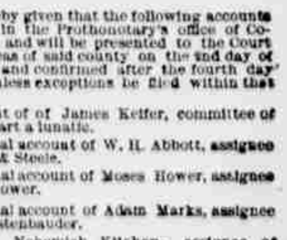

[SEAL.] State of Colorado, County of Weld, } ss. W. C. SANDERS, County Clerk and Recorder.

INSTRUCTIONS.

This Company will send by return mail, to any one sending within sixty days from the date of this paper their names, P. O. address, County and State, plainly written in full, a clear warrantee deed to a lot 25 feet front by 125 feet deep in North Denver, Colorado, clear of all taxes. Applications for city lots must be accompanied with one dollar for each lot to pay cost of making and acknowledging deed, postage, etc. The lots then can be sold and transferred at your pleasure. Let all improve this opportunity to secure a home in the richest State in the world. Deeds sent to any part of the U. S. and Canadas. Address all letters to

High School, Denver, Col.

NOTICE.

Notice to the members of the Citizens Building and Loan Association of Centralia, Pa.

I hereby give notice that the Constitution and By-Laws of said association has by a two-third vote of the share-holders been changed to read as follows:

Article IX of constitution amended after the words "loaned out" to read: The members shall be bound to take up the loans at the lowest premiums fixed beginning with that member who shall hold the largest number of shares unincumbered, but no one shall be compelled to take in a single month more than one loan in this manner.

Article XX Section 1st of by-laws amended after the word "reason" to read: The members who still hold free shares are bound to take up the same according to Article IX of the constitution, at the lowest premium fixed, then it shall be done in the following manner:

That member who holds the most free shares shall first take up a share, then the holder of the next highest number, one; and so on until all the members who hold over five shares shall have received one thereof. Then the succession begins again with the first, until all the shares of one and the same holder are reduced to five at the highest. Then if necessary the same rule shall be applied to the holders from five down three shares, then from two downwards until the dissolution of the association.

Sec. 2nd. If two or more members hold an equal number of shares, in such cases the succession shall be determined by lot between them.

Sec. 3d. Such involuntary loans shall be secured by the transfer of free shares to the association, and if these are not sufficient, by such security as the directors may find to be good.

By order of the President. Attest: J. R. REILLY,

Oct. 31.-3w Secretary.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the following accounts have been filed in the Prothonotary's office of Columbia County, and will be presented to the Court of Common Pleas of said county on the 2nd day of December 1879, and confirmed after the fourth day of said term unless exceptions be filed within that time.

Miscellaneous.

A PRAIRIE FIRE.

Next to calamities like that the homesteader's wife told of, the great besetting fear of the settlers on the border—in all the new and thinly peopled portions of Kansas, in fact—is the coming of the autumn prairie fire, which so frequently menaces their stacks and cribs, their helpless stock, their stables and cabins, and even their lives. Were it not for its known danger and power of havoc, this tempest and scourge of fire would be a spectacle of commanding force and beauty. First, you will catch glimpses of what you take to be long wisps of haze away off on the horizon; and watching, you will see the vagrant particles deepen gradually, and gather into a definite volume of smoke, black like a storm cloud, and bronze about the edges. Then the strange, somber bulk starts forward across the prairie, and you hold your breath at sight of the rapid progress of it. (A mile in two minutes is not exceptional rate of speed for a fire once fairly under way.) It halts an instant, you note, over a broad swale where there is standing water; but it is for an instant only. The next moment it reaches the upland again and the dry grass; and directly it catches a belt of the tall, thick blue-stem, and the flame leaps suddenly and madly out above the smoke, then subsides again, and the black mass grows blacker than ever, and rolls higher and higher, and you can seen the burning grass, and hear the distant roar of the fire—an awful roar, resembling the sound of artillery in heavy firing. And it is so calm immediately around you that you do not so much as miss the ticking of your watch in your pocket; there is no breath of air stirring, and the sun is shining, and the heavens above you are blue and placid. But the stillness will be broken soon. The oncoming cloud is only a few miles away now, and you easily trace the scarlet and terrific energy at its base; the smoke begins to hurt your eyes, too, and the heat becomes heavily oppressive. And then, all at once, the wind smites and staggers you, that appalling roar deafens you, and the sun is blotted out, and you are in a darkness as of a midnight without moon or star. It is an experience of but a dozen seconds or so, this sudden plunge into darkness, though it seems an hour, and when you look out again, you find that the fire has passed you a mile or more to your right, and is still rolling desperately onward; and there in its track are charred and smouldering stacks of hay, and an occasional house aflame and tottering to its fall, and a group of men and boys beating back the outer line of the fire with brush and old clothes, and sending forward little counter-fires to meet it and if possible keep it at a safe distance. The creek may stop it and smother it when it gets there, though such a hope has mere chance for a warrant; sometimes these mighty conflagrations vault across streams twenty or thirty yards in width, so swift and resistless is their momentum; and as a rule they are effectually stayed only when they reach a wide extent of plowed land, and have to yield, sullenly, for lack of anything more to feed their inexorable fury.—Scribner for November.

THE MONKEY AND THE HAWK.

The cook of a French nobleman, whose chateau was in the South of France, had a monkey which was allowed the free range of the kitchen, and which was so intelligent that by severe training its natural propensity to mischief had been subdued, and it was even taught to perform certain useful services, such as plucking fowls, for instance, at which it was uncommonly expert. One fine morning a pair of patridges was given it to pluck. The monkey took them to an open window, which looked directly upon the park, and went to work with great diligence. He soon finished one, which he laid on the outer ledge of the window, and then went quietly on with the other. A hawk, which had been watching his proceedings from a neighboring tree, darted down upon the plucked patridge, and in a minute was up in the tree again, greedily devouring his prey.

The consternation of the mokey at this untoward adventure may be easily imagined. He knew he should be severely whipped for losing it. He hopped about in great distress for several minutes, when suddenly a bright thought struck him. Seizing the remaining partridge, he went to work with great energy and stripped off the feathers. He then laid it on the ledge, just where he had placed the other, and closing one of the shutters concealed himself behind it. The hawk, which by this time had finished his meel, very soon swooped down upon the patridge; but hardly had its claw touched the bird when the monkey sprang upon him from behind the shutter. The hawk's head was instantly wrung, and the monkey, with a triumphant chuckle, proceeded to strip off the feathers. This done, he carried the two picked fowls to his master, with a confident and self satisfied air, which seemed to say: 'Here are two birds, sir, just what you gave me.' What the cook said, on finding one of the partridges converted into a hawk, is more than we are able to tell.

Mark Twain thus introduced General Hawley at a Republican meeting in Elmira: 'He is a member of my church at Hartford, and the author of 'Beautiful snow.' Maybe he will deny that. But I am only here to give him a character from his last place. as a pure citizen I respect him; as a personal friend of years, I have the warmest regard for him; as a neighbor whose vegetable garden adjoins mine, why—why I watch him. That's nothing, we all do that with any neighbor. General Hawley keeps his promise not only in private but in public. He is an editor who beleives what he writes in his own paper. As the author of 'Beautiful Snow' he has added a new pang to winter. He is broad-souled, generous, noble, liberal, alive to his moral and religious responsibilities. Whenever the contribution box was passed I never knew him to take out a cent. He is a square, true, honest man in politics, and I must say he occupies a mighty lonesome position. He is an American of Americans. Would we had more such men! So broad so bountiful is his character that he never turns a tramp empty handed from his door, but always gives him a letter of introduction to me. His public trusts have been many, and never in the slightest did he prove unfaithful. Pure, honest, incoruptible, that is Joe Hawley. And now, in speaking thus highly of the speaker of the evening, I haven't said any more of him than I wou'd say of myself.'

ONE EXPERIENCE FROM MANY.

"I had been sick and miserable so long and had caused my husband so much trouble and expense, no one seemed to know what ailed me, that I was completely disheartened and discouraged. In this frame of mind I got a bottle of Hop Bitters and used them unknown to my family. I soon began to improve and gained so fast that my husband and family thought it strange and unnatural, but when I told them what had helped me, they said "Hurrah for Hop Bitters! long may they prosper, for they have made mother well and us happy."—The Mother.

Agricultural.

THE BENEFITS OF SUGAR-BEET CULTURE.

We have frequently referred to the advantages promised by the culture of sugar beets for the manufacture of sugar. But a great industry does not grow, blossom, and become fruitful in a year, or in a few years. Yet its final success is hastened by the ease with which the raw material can be procured. If sugar beets were now grown as plentifully as potatoes, sugar factories would be as numerous as starch factories. It was the abundant supply of potatoes that tempted the starch manufacturers to build their factories, and offer a steady market for the farmer's produce. Let sugar beets once become a staple product of our farms, and the only obstacle to the establishment of a vast business in sugar making would be removed. Sugar beets can be made profitable for feeding, and not only so, but the effect of the culture upon our system of agriculture can not fail to be so advantageous as to invite farmers to adopt it, if but for its own value alone. Root culture implies good farming, for with poor farming one can not grow roots. Roots may be grown upon poor land by using the proper fertilizers and methods of culture, and there is no better method than this of working up the soil to a good condition. For if one grows a quantity of roots, these must be fed, and they can not be fed without making a large quantity of manure; further, they can not be fed with the greatest profit without the addition of some concentrated food, and that involves rich as well as abundant manure. Besides, in using roots and meal as a daily ration for cattle or sheep, it is found that straw will be consumed with avidity; in fact, it makes an excellent substitute for hay, and uses up profitably a waste product that is generally used only for litter. An idea is prevalent that root culture is costly. It may be at first under certain circumstances; as upon a poor soil and one foul with weeds, and especially under careless management. It may be made costly when, by neglect at a critical time, the whole crop is lost by being buried in weeds. But that is not the fault of the crop, but of the management. The seed for an acre of ground costs $6; that is, for Sugar Beets, which may be grown closer than Mangels; 12 lbs. of seed being needed for an acre; the cost of cultivation need be no more than for a crop of potatoes. The yield will be of considerably greater value than that of potatoes, reaching, under favorable circumstances, 800 bushels per acre, or 25 tons. For feeding, the sugar-beet is worth more than double the quantity of mangels, as it contains more than twice as much solid matter, so that 25 tons per acre is equivalent to as large a crop of the grosser mangels, as can be expected under the most favorable conditions. The direct profit is then attractive enough to induce farmers to raise Sugar Beets merely for feeding purposes, while the indirect profit arising from the improved condition of the soil, gives a respectable return in addition. When the culture of Sugar Beets then becomes general, there will doubtless be no lack of capital to work them into sugar, any more than there would be to operate a silver or a gold mine that might be discovered on a man's farm. It is the want of material that has kept back enterprise in this line; the men and the money are always ready to develop any staple and profitable raw material.—American Agriculturist.

EARLY OR LATE FODDER.

Prof. Caldwell says in the New York Tribune that the common opinion that early cut fodder or grass is more valuable than later cut, has been somewhat unsettled by the results of recent researches of Killner, who found that although the quantity of nitrogen diminished as the plants grew older, yet the quantity of albuminoids increased more rapidly than the total nitroginous matters diminished. In other words, those nitrogenous matters known as amides (the value of which has been questioned) were found in six weeks to diminish to less than one-twelfth. Prof. C. makes the following practical suggestion:

Evidently we need more experiments on the actual producing capacity of different kinds of fodder to supplement what has been done in Germany toward determining its composition and digestibility. These laborious researches have thus far only shown us, with respect to the nitrogenous substance as a whole, how much nitrogen is taken in by the animal in its food, and how much is thrown out in its solid excreta. They have not shown us how much albuminous substance is assimilated by the animal, nor what is the producing capacity of the fodder as a whole. Mr. Sanborn has put this matter to a practical test in one series of experiments with hay cut July 1, with about a fourth of the heads in bloom, and July 11, when out of blossom; to one lot of steers the early cut hay was fed, and the late cut hay to another lot, and then the conditions were reversed so as to give to the first lot the late cut hay and the other to the second lot. He obtained in both trials a better growth with the late cut hay. On averaging all the results it was found that it required 15.7 pounds of the early cut hay to make a pound of growth, against but 9 6 pounds of the late cut hay. Prof. Johnson found almost 1 per cent. less of nitrogenous substance in the older hay, but he did not find any of the nitrogen existing in non-albuminous forms in either case, although not wholly satisfied with the reliability of the test employed. Since the two kinds of hay did not differ essentially in other respects, the result obtained by Mr. Sanborn is remarkable, and needs confirmation by farther experiments. Mr. S. thinks that we may be mistaken in our present practice as to the time for cutting grass for hay. The mistake, if it be one, is made by a great many farmers. Cannot others try similar experiments, and, in order to get more decisive results, take an earlier date for the early cut hay?

Cows.—A cool, dark, clean stable for the cows is, for many reasons, preferable to a hot pasture in the middle of the day. Cows that have been kept up on moderate feed will shrink in their milk on being turned into a luxurious pasture on a hot day. Dry earth or sand makes a better bedding than straw during the hot season.

The experiment of sowing a bushel of oats to every two bushels of wheat in the fall has been successfully tried in Iowa. The oats grow rapidly until cut down by the frost, and then they form a covering that keeps the wheat from being winter-killed. In the spring the rotted oat leaves serve as a profitable top-dressing.

LOW PRICES FOR BUTTER.

The New York Tribune in its market report, explained why some butter is sold for such low prices. In speaking of butter it said "Light colored goods are very hard to dispose of and several lots were thought well sold at 8 to 10 cents." If butter makers would get the top price, they should use the Perfected Butter Color, made by Wells Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. It gives a pure dandelion color, and never turns red, or rancid, but tends to improve and preserve the butter.

D. I. C. Is an absolute and irresistable cure for DRUNKenness, Intemperance and the use of Opium, Tobacco, Narcotics, and Stimulants, removing all taste, desire and habit of using any of them, rendering the taste or desire for any of them perfectly odious and disgusting. Giving every one perfect and irresistable control of the sobriety of themselves or their friends.

It prevents that absolute physical and moral prostration that follows the sudden breaking off from using stimulants or narcotics.

Package, prepaid, to cure 1 to 5 persons, $2, or at your druggists, $1.75 per bottle.

Temperance societies should recommend it. It is perfectly harmless and never-failing.

Hop Bitters Mfg. Co., Rochester, N. Y. Sole Agents.

Hop Cough Cure destroys all pain, loosens the cough, quiets the nerves, produces rest, and never fails to cure.

The Hop Pad for Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, is superior to all others. Cures by absorption. It is perfect—ask druggists.

The Hop Bitters Mfg. Co., of Rochester, N. Y. only, prepare these remedies, also the Hop Bitters, which are in no sense a beverage or intoxicant, but the Purest and Best Medicine ever made, making more cures than all other remedies.
